

The FCC is really starting to piss me off right now, i don't understand why we cant vote on this stuff, and why it would be in the hands of people who don't even understand the internet, we got bought out for so little and it sickens me. Google fiber is our only hope now, but that will take years for it to get all over the united states. Im lucky i live in Austin and i will have access to it shortly. The FCC needs to listen to the people and realize that you cant capitalize on the internet, that we're done being lied to about bull internet speeds and that phones wont cut it. We need the internet, we need it free, its a platform for free speech, and when you take that away from us, what good is it anymore when i don't even have a first amendment right in the united states of America
